Viet Cong Urge GIs to Desert

By Andreas Freund

PARIS, April 26 (NYT).-The South Vietnamese Communists today called on American soldlers in Vietnam to stop fighting or desert, promised that their forces would not fire on American troops that refused to fight, and said that some Americans are fighting in Vict Cong ranks.

The appeal to American soldiers was contained in a document read here at o press conference. The information on GIs lighting with the Viet Cong was given by a Viet Cong spokerman in commenting on the document, an "order of the day" issued by the command of the viet Cong military forces. The fifth point of the five-liminat order of the day stated that "U.S. servicemen—indiriduals or groups" are "wel-come" to "support" Viet Cong

Questioned about that point the spokesman, Duong Dinh Thao, of the Viet Cong delegafion to the peace talks, indicated that "supporting" meant "fighting alongside." adding. There are a number of American soldiers fighting in the ranks of the Liberation Pressed to say how many dimericans were doing so, Mr. Dixong would only say, Their number is limited as yet." He gent on to say that a greater number of American deserters here hiding in Vietnam," projected by the South Vietnamese population."

The order of the day pledged

• That servicemen or units entying with them anti-war literature will be spared in Viet Cong attacks, much as if they carried a safe-conduct.

That aid will be extended to soldiers desertlog their inits because of discrimina-likon against them, for reasons of rank, race, or otherwise.

"we are on our way to a period of solld, sustainable expansion." But his main theme in his speech went beyond economic recovery to the larger issues posed by the divisions in the country and what he called "the sense of

Soviet Space Trip Reaction Increases Doubts on Success

MCSCOW, April 26 (AP).-The crew of the Soviet spacecraft Soyuz-10 was allotted only a lowlevel welcome when the three cosmonauts returned to Moscow today, raising further doubts about the mission's success.

The highest official on hand to greet Col. Vladimir A. Shatalov. Alexei S. Yeliseyev and Nikolai N. Rukavishnikov at the airport was the chairman of the Soviet Space Commission, whose identity is kept secret.

The chief of the space program kissed each of the men after Col. Shatalov, the flight commander. reported that the Soyuz mission had been carried out.

The crewmen boarded limousines for the trip through a late spring blizzard to the cosmonauts' village near Moscow, Izvestia reported tenight.

According to official pronouncements, the mission was a success. The Soyuz-10 craft reached and docked with the unmanned space station Salvte to test a new docking mechanism.

Doubts Persisted Doubts persisted in the capital. however, about the extent of the success of the Soyuz-10 flight, which coded yesterday after only two days in space. Skepticism was fed by the modest post-flight claims made by official organs and the existence of several curious features of the flight, as reported by the tightly controlled information machine, Erecution of the mission, first of cll, did not conform to the profile of the flight, which had been outlined as "spectacular" by informed "unofficial" Soviet sources before Soyuz-10 left the launching pad.

Conforming to established practice, Soviet officials gave no detailed program for the flight before it ended. But it has been anticipated that Soyuz-10 would stay up longer, that a crewman would pass into Salyut to run tests on the space station end that at least one other manned craft would join Soyuz-10. Further Efforts

The broad object of the Salyut launching was to prepare a permanent orbital laboratory in space, Further efforts may still be attempted by a Soyuz-11 or Soyuz-12.

But, for Soyuz-10, something seems to have gone wrong. The trouble seems to have been both mechanical and human, if Tass The official news egency, hinting at trouble, said that ground control bad "emperienced a certain space overload." It also spoke of "tension in the flight control center." The source of the tension was not spelled out. But there were broad indications that it might bave originated with Mr. Rukavishnikov, the only crew member who had never flown in space

Tass said that the space rookie had expressed gratitude to his fellow crewmen for their "presence and advice" on getting accustomed to weightlessness and overcoming "unusual and rather unpleasant feelings arising as a result of the increased blood flow to the bead."

Dector's Comments

The agency also cited a doctorcosmonaut. Boris Yegorov. as saying that the mission had led to "a considerable emotional load on the cosmonauts,"

Dr. Yegorov told of the discomforts suffered in flight by Mr. Rukavishnikov in a medical commentary published in English by Tass but deleted from the version published for Soviet readers.

"Rukavishnikov said during one of the communications sessions that the presence and advice of Vladimir Shatalov and Alexel Yeliseyev helped him to get accustomed to weightlessness, overcome unusual and rather unpleasant feelings as a result of the increased blood flow to his bead," Dr. Yegorov said.

The government newspaper Izvestia, in its first edition since the landing, also skipped Dr. Yegorov's remarks.

Cosmonaut Quoted

It quoted Mr. Rukavishnikov himself, at a post-landing news conference yesterday, as saying that cosmonauts are trained to shrug nff the effects of weight-

"The impressions of all phases of the flight are unexpected for a man who has never been in space before," Mr. Rukavishnikov

"A roar, flashes, physical pressures all affect you very strongly and certainly there are certain difficulties in this during flight. "But those preparing for space flight are trained and that is why they do not take this as something very new."

Moscow space sources have said that experiments with Salyut involving manned spaceships could run into many weeks. They forecast that up to three more manned ships will participate, perhaps linking with Salyut to establish the first manned orbiting laboratory or platform. Important Task

"One of the flight's most imprefected system of searching for, detecting and approaching an unmanned object and testing a new system of docking and disengaging with it." Col. Shatalov told a news conference.

"The crew is satisfied with the work and we are satisfied with the results of the flights," he aroused by an inland choice. The location of the airport had heen dehated for years by experts, politicians and the public. The outcome was the more remarkable because it precisely reversed the recommendation of a high-level commission.

The commission was headed by a high court judge, Sir Eustace Roskill. It suggested a site north of London, near Cublington in the vale of Aylesbury, Buckinghamshire.

A Cublington airport would have obliterated a good deal of beautiful rolling country and an especially picturesque village, Stewkley. A 12th century Norman church would have been flattened to make way for a

The Stewkley church became a embol of resistance to destruc-"progress." People in that area held immense protest rallies, and in many places there were objections to the noise and disturbance that any new inland airport in the south of England would cause.

Only one of the Roskill Commission's seven members originally opposed Cublington and favored Foulness. He was the well-known urban planner. Colin Buchanan, who said any inland site would be "an environmental disaster." . In the end his view

The minister for trade and industry, John Davies, announced the decision to cheers in the House of Commons today. He made clear that legal steps would be taken to overcome one Roskill objection to Foulness the claim that airlines would not use it because of its distance from Lon-

Mr Davies said aircraft movements would be limited at the two existing airports serving London -Heathrow and Gatwick-to encourage uze of Foulness, Landing fees could be arranged to the same end, he added. Growing Complaints

The retrictions at Heathrow and Gatwick, which are in populous areas west and south of London may meet some of the growing complaints about aircraft noise there. And flights may also be limited at smaller airports nearby.

Some planners have advocated gradual move to concentrate long-distance flights at a coastal site such as Foulness, At the same time, private interests have talked about building a vast new port complex there on filled

Mr. Davies said the government was looking into all this and would leave the way open for such a comprehensive development. In any case, he said, the new airport would offer "a great opportunity for imaginative, integrated development."

Resor, Abrams Confer

SATGON, April 26 (UPT),-Secretary of the Army Stanley Resor met today with the top commander in Vietnam, Gen. Creighton W. Abrams. Army spokesmen said the secretary, who arrived yesterday, will try to visit all four of South Vietnam's military regions.

President's Policy Sent on to Peking

In its report the panel said that all governments which clearly govern specific areas—even though they may not control all of the area claimed-should have UN membership. Among its other proposals were

• The United States should support establishment of a UN Peace Reserve, development of a permanent corps of military observers and creation of a UN peace fund. • The U.S. should seek over a period of years to shrink its present contribution to the world body to a maximum of one-fourth of the UN's regular budget. The present American contribution is more than 31.5 percent ont of a total of some $200 million a year.

• "Microstates," those having populations of less than a million, should be accepted as associate members of the UN. They would have to renounce their voting and election privileges but would enjoy all other rights and benefits of membership and be excused from contributing to the assessed budget. Long Frozen Posture

But it was the Ching recommendations which drew the most interest in this capital, bemused as it is by the sudden movement in the long-frozen U.S.-China posture as a result of Peking's invitation to the American table tennis team.

"The commission has found," the report said, "growing public support in the United States for tha involvement of the People's Republic of China in the work of the UN. There is also a deep American commitment to the continued representation of the Republic of China on Taiwan (Formosa) in the UN.

In its official statements, Peking has plainly rejected the idea of "two China"-membership in the UN with equal footing for Peking and Taipei. The commission's members noted that both claim to represent all of mainland China and all of Teiwan. But they said each would bave to decide whether one of them would not be involved if the other were present in the

"UN activities logically ought to loclude both governments," the panel said

"The commission helieves that a great many Americans think it is fair to have two separate seats for two different governments, each clearly controlling different areas. This is not a question of dual representation for one China, bot the provision of two seats for two governments."

U.S.-Peking Contacts

In confirming third-party contacts between Washington and Peking, State Department spokesman Charles Bray was responding to questions about American writer Edgar Snow's report to that effect.

Writing in Life magazine, Mr. Snow said the purpose of the American messages, delivered last year, was to assure the Communist Chinese government of President Nixon's "new outlook" on Asian effairs.

Mr. Bray said, "You can essume we discussed our desires for better relations with a number of other governments. It seems quite possible that representatives of those other governments have made known our views to the People's Republic of Chine, and I assume it is to those conversations that Mr. Snow has reference in his story."

Mr. Bray did not identify the "other governments" concerned, but it was believed probable that one was the government in Bucharest. Romanian President Nicolae Ceausescu visited Presideot Nixon last October, a followup on Mr. Nixon's visit to Bucharest in August, 1969.

The State Department spokesman did not disclose to reporters what response, if any, came from Peking to the U.S.

In bis article Mr. Snow reported that Chairman Mao Tse-tung told him in a Peking interview last December that be would be happy to talk with Mr. Nixon, cither as tourist or as a prest-

Meanwhile, Mr. Bray said, he had no action to report at this time on possible resumption of the Warsaw talks between the American and mainland Chinese ambassadors, but he noted that the United States bas said over a long period that it "would welcome additional sessions of talks going on in Warsaw." The last was in February, 1970.

On the last point, Mr. Wilson combined his attack with one against the Conservative party's pending labor-relations bill, which outlaws the closed shop.

The consequence of that, coupl

Sen. Fullbright said the OAO findings and recommendations on programs of economic and military aid collectively "tell a tale of bureaucratic woe, mismanagement, and inefficiencyfeebly attempting to promote a sort of up-dated dollar diplomacy.

"More than this, the GAO's compilation tells a tale of disregard for congressional intent and the use of foreign aid funds as a kind of diplomatic pork Ser. Pulbright then added:
"This compliation is, in short, a catalog of our foreign-aid ills—some of which have been selfinflicted, others of which have been contracted with the help of some nf our staunchest 'allies'.'

Although intended to document shortcomings of policy and ad-ministration of ald programs in recent years, one of the incidental effects of the GAO compilation and Sen. Fulbright's estimate of it was to indicate the climate in which the President's "new approach" will be considered by the Senate group. Sen. Fulbright drew attention to a few specific GAO disclosures as worthy of special mention: · The United States provided $130 million of economic aid to Guatemala from 1961 to 1968, but the GAO pointed out, according to Sen. Fulbright, that "Guatemalan self-help perfor-mance had been limited by political instability and a resistance to fundamental economic and social reform."

• Loan standards on Brazil's economic development loan project valued at $100 million had to be "relaxed" in 1968 because of "overriding U.S. political considerations." In the GAO view, the relaxation would not have been necessary had there been adequate planning prior to loan approval.

 The Agency for International Development permitted India to divert $8.6 million of economic development funds in 1969 to purchase truck components and parts for the Indian Defense Ministry. AID rejected a GAO suggestion that it file a refund claim because "there was no clear, unarguable violation of agreements between the United States and India."

the GAO discovered that the Defense Department had entered into an agreement in 1960 with five North Atlantic Treaty Organization countries to produce Hawk surface-to-air missiles in Europe without knowing what they would cost and without funds on hand to pay for them.

it was constitutional for the state to require the referendum by which voters in San Jose, Calif., in 1968 defeated a proposed federally assisted housing project, 68,000 to 58,000. Although phrased as a decision about the democratic process of a popular referendum procedure, the decision could have a strong influence on the nation's still-uncertain policy of using federal power to break suburban barriers to poor as well as the black. Only last month, after the case from the City of San Jose and San Mateo County, Callf., had been argued, President Nixon stressed that his opposition to "forced integration" nomic, not racial.

In a televised interview, the President said he would not authorize "a low-cost federal government project" in an area of middle-class homes "until it is required by the law." The high court's refusal to place economic obstacles to better housing in the same "suspect" category as racial obstacles was "deeply disappointing" to the Na-tional Urban Coalition, which had joined leading labor, civil rights and housing organizations in urging the justices to strike down the referendum procedure. Justice Hugo L. Black, a vehament dissenter in recent years when the court struck down referendums that repealed fair housing laws in California and Akron, Ohio, said for the majority that "only by extend-ing" the 1969 Akron ruling beyond race discrimination could the referendum be outlawed, "and

Egypt Wary Of Upcoming Rogers Visit

Press Questions American Motives

By Raymond H. Andersnn

CAIRO, April 26 'NYT'.-The Egyptian leadership, although it has put out an official welcome mat for Secretary of State Willlam P. Rogers to visit Cairo, indicated today that It was wary of the motives behind the trip and skeptical that any benefit for Egypt would be forthcoming. Egyptions were cautloned by editorials in the Cairo press against optimism over the visit, which will begin May 4 and last two days. The tone of editorials in Al Gumhouriya and Al Akhbar.

Akhbar, Mousa Sabry, reflected misgivings about the visit voiced by official spokesmen. In his open letter, Mr. Sabry said that Egyptians were "suspicious of America's intentions" and stressed that the announcement of Mr. Rogers's visit had been preceded by a reinforcement the U.S. Sixth Flect in the Mediterranean and reports of additional deliveries of U.S. military aircraft to Israel Concerned Over Terms

Egyptian spokesmen have underlined a concern here about being confronted with unacceptable Israeli counterterms for implementation of President Anwar el-Sadat's proposal for a puliback by Israeli troops from the Suez Canal and a reopening of the waterway.

To avoid any "misunderstanding" by Mr. Rogers on Cairo's po-sition, the Foreign Ministry is-High Court Allows Referenda sued a statement over the weekend relterating insistence that ony agreement on the Suez Canal initiative must be only a first step toward total Israeli withdrawal from occupied Arab territories.
Al Gumhouriya, which is the official organ of the Arab Socialist Union, Egypt's sole political organization, voiced suspicion about U.S. interest in promoting a reopening of the canal.

Nonetheless, Al Gumhouriya which is the most vociferous of all Cairo papers in denouncing U.S. policy, conceded that It would The managing editor,

As Rogers Starts Tour U.S., Israel Weigh Suez Moves

By Marilyn Berger

LONDON, April 26 (V.P).-The United States bas formally responded to inquiries from Israel about the role it is prepared to play in an interim arrangement that would reopen the Suez

The reniies to a series of onestions, still considered top secret, were made last week during meetings in both Jerusalem and Washington. U.S. officials disclosed the latest diplomatic move as Secretary of State William P. Rogers launched a nine-nation tour of Europe and the Middle East. These officials hope to have the go-ahead from Israel to undertake a full and detailed discussion of Jerusalem's posi tion when Mr. Rogers reaches Cairo later next week.

as well as in an open letter to Mr. Rogers by the editor of Al Mr. Rogers has said he bopes to use his trip to keep up, and possibly accelerate, the momentum toward reaching a settlement. It was understood that the United States remains undismayed by a somewhat more bellicose tone emerging from the newly formed federation of Egypt, Syria and Libya because of assurances from Cairo that Egypt continues to stand by its willingness to make peace with Israel.

Another tentatively bopeful sign was seen in some moves by Syria indicating a desire to take a somewhat less militant stance. A Syrian official visited the State Department within the last few weeks to see Assistant Secretary of State Joseph Sisco, U.S. of ficials said.

First Hint

This was the first hint that Syria might be getting ready to end its opposition to efforts toward peace since it refused to accept the Security Council resolution of 1967. There were also signs that Pan American World Airways is preparing to resume ser, ice to Damescus.

Syria is not on Mr. Rogers' it:nerary, but the entire thrust of this trip is to bring some impetus Middle East diplomacy. Thus the first part of the Rogers tour, with stops in London and Ankara to attend meetings of the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization and the Central Treaty Organization, take on the aspects of a sideshow.

On his arrival here, Mr. Rog-ers said that on his trlp to nine countries, "We will be concerned... primarily with the two areas of greatest world tension-Southeast Asia and the Middle East." At the SEATO meeting here, Mr. Rogers said he would be discussing economic cooperation in the future development of

West German Kidnap Hoax May Lead to Prosecution

BONN. April 26 (Reuters).— West German authorities today considered whether to prosecute a rightlat university professor who last week faked his own kidnapping in the hope of influencing a federal state election.

The public prosecutor here announced Prof. Berthold Rubin and his assistant at Cologne University, Rudolf Metzger, might be charged with feigning a crime, which could mean as much as two years in prison.

The investigation involved several accomplices in the disappearance of the 59-year-old professor, who once parachuted into Scotland in emulation of Hitler's deputy Rudolf Hess.

After allegedly writing letters that they had been kidnapped by a leftist gang, the professor and his assistant admitted it was all a hoax to work against the Social and Free Democrats in yesterday's Schleswig-Holstein election. The professor is a supporter of the Christian Social Union of Frenz Josef Strauss.

The professor was reported to be very pleased at the large con-

Brandt Rejects Nationwide Vote After Local Loss

BONN. April 26 (Reuters).— Willy Brandt's Socialist-Liberal coalition, government today ex-cluded the possibility of new national elections following yesterday's success by the opposition Christian Democrats in atate elections in Schleswig-Holstein.

Government spokesman Ruevon Wechmar told a press conference that the government did not see its working ability impaired by the result.

Some CNU spokesmen have called for a new election after their party, which has ruled Germany's northernmost state for 20 years in a minority government, for the first time won an absolute majority of the votes in yesterday's election.

It did so at the expense of the Free Democrats, junior partner in the Bonn coalition, which failed to win 5 percent of the vote and thus lost all its four seats in the 73-member state parliament, and of the extreme-rightist National Democratic party, whose share of the vote slumped from 5.8 percent in 1967 to 1.3 percent.

Bar on Peron To Be Kept By Argentina

Return Is 'Irritating Factor at This Time'

BUENOS AIRES, April 26 (AP). -The government of Argentina said today that former President Juan D. Peron will continue to be prohibited from returning

"The return of Perch would constitute an irritating factor at this time," said Interior Minister Arturo Mor Rolg in a surprise announcement Discussions have been held at high levels on the possibility of allowing Mr. Peron to return to Argentina as part of a program aimed at pacification of the country's divided political factions. Mr. Peron, 75, lives in exile in Madrid. He was ousted in a bloody military coup in 1965 after nine years as president.

Although he has been away from Argentina for 18 years, he is still considered the greatest political force in the country. His chief strength has rested with the

Mr. Mor Rolg said he was expressing a personal opinion, but he has become the chief political spokesman for the government and it is likely his view reflects the official one.

Asked when he thought the time would be right for Mr. Peron's return, Mr. Mor Rolg said it would first be necessary "to complete the entire process" of pacification.

Speculation on Mr. Peron's return had seemed encouraged by the administration of President Alejandro Lanusse, who took office on March 26 following a military coup.

Mr. Lanusse has indicated he wants to restore elections to Argentina within three years. In recent days, labor unions have posted pictures of Mr. Peron in Boenos Aires with the slogan, "There will be no solution with-

A-Pact With U.S. Denied by Japan

TOKYO, April 26 (Reuters) .-The Japanese Foreign Ministry today denied that there was any agreement with the United States to allow nuclear weapons to be based in Japan. Tsutomu Wada, director of the ministry's Information Bureau, said: "We do not have such an agreement, oral or written. The report is totally groundless." Mr. Wada was commenting on a report by The New York Times that a secret agreement with the Japanese government had for years permitted the United States to move nuclear weapons temporarily into Japan. (The article also was published in today's International Herald Tribune.)

In Washington, the State Department also denied the exis-tence of any such agreement.

The ballet is propeganda of the crudest and most direct kind but is presented so well that it makes just as good an artistic vehicle as most Western ballets with their fantasy themes. Both muclc and choreography are worked out to appear thoroughly natural for Chinese theater.

"The White-Haired Girl" is part of the limited staple fare that was given all the proper political messages and nuances during the Cultural Revolution and that now provides eotertainment for the Chinese masses.

accession of tall, plump Jean-Claude Duvalier to the presidency of Haiti. To become president for life, as Papa Doc Duvalier did, is a not unfamiliar aberrance in the presidential system. Louis Napoleon, who played so many variations on democratic themes. passed from president for a fixed term to president for life by coup d'état. But he did not try to found a dynasty until he had assumed the imperial crown-Papa Doc did so by testament, He was uniroubled by either the democratic implications of the presidency or by the hereditary symbolism of a throne. For hlm. Haiti's government was a plastic substance to be molded any way he saw fit-like some powerful count of the Dark Ages, setting aside at once Carolingian pretensions and the Frankish practice of electing their kings.

Whether Jean-Claude-young, inexperienced, not educated for his task-will be able to cope with the private police, the army and his own sister is doubtful. The strange panic that suddenly erupted during Papa Doc's funeral procession is a very accurate symptom of the insecurity and dread that lay under the facade of the first Duvalier's rule—that, indeed, was built into it. For, after more than a century and a half of independence. Halti is desperately poor, culturally under-privileged, and politically unstable. Ont of the dreams and greatness of Toussaint L'Ouverture has emerged a biack ghetto in the Carlbbean.

This is not the fault of Haitl's blackness. any more than Bariem, or Newark's inner racism.

There is something Capetlan about the city, are the fault of the blacks who dwell there. Like the Haltlans, the latter are a predominantly rural people in the middle of an industrial world. To make the transition is always hard: for blacks in a world where power lies almost wholly in white hands it is harder still. If Haiti offers a lesson to black nationalists, it is not that black nationalism is bad, but that nationalism alone is not enough.

The U.S. ambassador to Port-au-Prince thimself a black; is urging economic aid for Haiti, ald without strings. Haiti does need aid, and any conditions, even those providing for a reasonable degree of efficiency, might well prove self-defeating. The trouble is that such aid might simply bolster the preposterous presidency of Jean-Claude Duvalier and the forces that surround him. Thus the dilemma raised by Haiti is not unlike those that have confronted efforts to resolve the problems of ghettos in the continental United States: Aid doled out palernally causes resentment, and stunts Institutive; aid given without supervision may not only redound to the profit of a few, but fasten on a neighborhood the rule of the self-seckers.

Blacks may retort that they would rather be exploited by their own than by the whites, but that does not really answer the question. Certainly it would not convince those Greeks who regard any assistance or countenance afforded the present Greek government as a sin against democracy. The dilemma is real, and should not be confused by slogans, whether those of black nationalism, of the Cold War or of white

Reopening Suez: The Right Project Now

Mr. Rogers took a sensible tack Friday in his approach to the current object of Mideast diplomacy, a first-stage interim settlement to reopen the Suez Canal. It's "up to the parties." Egypt and Israel, the secretary sald, carefully defining the American role as that of a bystander willing to be helpful-even in an international peace forcebut only if asked. Or course, the United States is much more than a bystander. This country has a major stake in Mideast stability and Mr. Rogers is about to begin the first trlp to the region that any U.S. secretary of state has been able to take in some 18 years. But it would undercut the American interest, to say nothing of Mr. Rogers's trip, had he indulged in the overheated rhetoric of the U Thant sort about this being the last chance for peace, the final gasp of diplomacy before another war, and so on.

work. It is the essence of serious diplomacy. as against over-reaching, to do what can be done, even if everything cannot be done at once. This is, we gather, the spirit of Mr. Rogers's diplomacy now.

On terms for reopening the canal, Egypt of the principal issues. Egypt says a canal deal must be a step on the path to complete Israell withdrawal to pre-war frontiers; Israel wants to treat the canal as a matter apart from a final settlement, Egypt insists on posting its troops on the canal's east bank, Israel says no. To bolster its bargaining position, Egypt has just received. and conspicuously displayed, large new shipments of Soviet arms and statements of Soviet support. Israel continues to receive American arms. More wary than ever after Washington's fallure to stop Soviet missile violations last summer, Israel now, apparentby wants an American guarantee in the form of advance approval for the Israell Army to take what steps may be necessary to prevent Egyptlan forces from crossing the canal.

As always, nowever, the heart of the matter lles not so much in matching up terms as in satisfying the political requirements perceived back home, In Cairo, President Sadat evidently wants, perhaps needs, a first-stage deal. He is in the difficult posttion of having nothing to show for his major concession, which was to accept the idea of a peace treaty with Israel. He lost most of the leverage this concession might otherwise have gained him by, at the same time. permitting the Russians to consolidate further their military presence in Egypt, A canal deal might get him off this book.

On its side. Tel Aviv seems to figure that ils canal ramparls constitute an asset worth "selling," if the price is right. A canal deal would, moreover, extend the cease-fire and The fact is that, however it may turn out, make another milliary outbreak much less the guns are silent and the diplomats are at likely, and this would probably ease American pressure on Israel to evacuate all the way back to prewar lines. Then, both capitals deeply appreciate the blessing of continuing the cease-fire and avolding further battle

A worrisome new element has been inand Israel are far apart. To speak just jected into this and other diplomatic prospects by the decision of Egypt. Syria and Libya to form a "lederation," subject to a "plebiscite" Sept. 1. Syria and Libra are still in the stage of contending that Israel has no right to exist, let alone to live at peace. Even if the federation remains a paper document for a long time, as seems probable, its very existence could tempt Cairo to claim that it cannot make compromises with Israel because its federation partners won't go along. In all, the federation provides yet another good reason for Egypt and Israel to work on reopening Suez

Candidate Ky

The election campaign is virtually open in South Vietnam, although all candidates for the supreme office are not yet known. By his blustering remarks. Vice-President Ky gave the kickoff for the fight that will plt him against President Thieu and probably Gen. Duong Van Minh, Gen. Ky's denunciations of corruption or even of foreign presence are not new. They are now thrown into special relief because the first official of the state is accused of "ingratitude" and his affirmation of "2 victory" in lower Laos is openiy challenged. Such criticisms would be more easily acceptable if they dld not come from a man who has participated in the conduct of public affairs for many months and who, still a month ago, spoke of launching his troops against North Vietnam . . . The Vletnamese, fed up with unkept promises, victims of the war and of injustice, are unlikely to give such remarks more importance than they deserve. -From Le Monde (Paris).

Russia and Ceylon

By making such a positive gesture to help the Ceylon government, the Russians have shown that they will not hesitate to take similar action in other areas of the Indian Ocean when the opportunity presents itself. Whether such action is aimed basically at countering moves by the Chinese or undermining the position of the West, the net result will be the same: a spread of Soylet influence in the Indian Ocean. Unless the West is prepared to see its own role and influence in the area drastically reduced, it is clearly unwise to go on behaving as if this Soviet objective were a figment of the lmagination.

OPIDON.-In observance of Law Day, a group of New York lowyers plans to march this Friday in New York and speak about ending the war in Indochina, In several other cities committees of lawyers are working for an end to the war.

It is a significant development in what remains on the whole a conservative profession. Many lawyers, as cautious mrn, would ask what special role they had to play as lawyers in the growing public debate about the war. Why lawyers?

A first, obvious answer is that lawyers must be concerned about a situation that has so gravely affected American respect for law. For, week after week, there is the war's corrupting effect.

A Russian's View

As a Soviet citizen who is interested in East-West relations. I believe that a free exchange of opinions leads to a better international understanding which will undoubtedly enable us to achieve one of the most humane goals— a durable peace in the world. I feel that to discuss different mat-ters and problems might well enable us to solve some of thece problems that confront each and every one in all countries of the world. Do you share my view? If so, would you kindly publish this: I believe that it is a delusion to continue to think in terms of wicked attacks and righteous defense when, no matter where the fault ues, the result is the same: mutual annihilation I have read recent reports and commentaries in the press and I came to the following conclusion: No doubt, responsible statesmen of the great countries are wrong when they make utterings that ther are prepared for the pos-sibility of a nuclear war which will end with the destruction of civilization, if not of all life. They hope that these weapons will never be used, but they are willing to use them, if necessary. This is madness!

I believe quite categorically that the manufacture of nuclear weapons—the very thought of slaughtering millions of people, if necessary—is madness!

We must live in Friendship, that is, in Peace. There come to my mind here the following words the Rev. Canon L. John Collins wrote in his letter to me of Jan. 23, 1963, from England; "Of course, I agree with you entirely that war is amoral, and that all same and sensible peopla want peace, with-out which there can be no real Who can human happiness." impugn this?

I see where Vanessa Redgrave is getting into the act by bankrniling some U.S. servicemen in Britain to put out a newspaper attacking the Vietnam war, our military system, even American capitalism; which is quite a project for a bunch of creeps to undertake. And anyway; why bother when the IRT is doing the job?

Returning to Miss Reograve, will someone please tell me why we seem to listen with respect to celebrities when they take action outside of the field in which they are renowned? For the most part they don't know what they are talking about—a truism which in this case is quite an understatement: Please, Miss Redgrave, stick to play-acting. ## Hidden Motives?

Additionally, there may be some more serious, not to say sinister motives. Soviet scientists have reinted out that from a soace platform it would be possible to ismuch transcontinental missiles accurate to within tens of centimeters. Such accuracy would make the huge SS-9 missiles winch the Soviets are now deploying a truly serious threat to ite land-based missile force of the United States.

Soriet military men have also pointed out the advantages of isunching a missile from space. Euch weapons would be almost introssible to knock out, to defend against or even to monitor.

But all of this is lost on the Sorlet population. Public Interest in the space shots here has been remarkably stight. Many educated Russians seemed not even to know that a new effort was under way. Even after the news had spread all around town, ordinary Russians were not moved to turn on the television sets in the hotel lobbies to get late reports.

One foreign diplomat here tells of meeting a peasant in the Ukraine who complained that he was only making 60 rubles, which is about $60 at official exchange rates, per month, while millions being wasted in the sky. Another diplomat reports that he asked a Soviet journalist why so much attention was being paid to space when there was so little public interest. The journalist indicated that the space coverage came on orders from the top, not on the initiative of the editor.

It's Old Hat

read the article by Mr. David Bluder concerning the visit April 23). The writer employs mancurate statements to support his thesis that the Senator and Mrs. Kennedy made a bad impression in their stay here. First, the receptions and other social activities arranged in Bonn were in honor of the friends of the Boston Symphony, who were accompanying the orchestra on ils European tour. Thus the implication that the Kennedys were tardy at functions arranged in their honor is misleading. Serand, to say that the Senator and Mrs. Kennedy were an hour late for a party given "for them" by the American ambassador in Bonn is wrong on two counts. Sen. Kennedy dld not arrive in Germany to join Mrs. Kennedy until the day after the ambassador's reception. The reception itself was given for the friends of the orchestra, not for the Kennedys. Further, Mrs. Kennedy had advised her hosts that the would be delayed arriving. Third. the accusation that Sen. Kennedy was late in the reception given by Foreign Minister Scheel and Minister-President Kohl on Friday is entirely mitleading. The senator took advantage of his one day in Bonn to schedule discussions with three important cificials of the German government: Minister Ehmke, Gen, de Maizière of the Defense Ministry and Foreign Minister School. These appointments overlapped the two receptions at which-and guest of honor. The senator kept his three official appointments and additionally went to the two receptions, which still were in progress when attired. Moreover, his German hosts had been told that because of the official conversations the scuator could not possibly arrive during the early stages of the receptions. He did all this after arriving at Bonn at 7 a.m. ziter an overnight flight from New York. I ask that you publish this letter in fairness to the Kennedys, to your readers and to those Germans like me who were delighted to have the Kennedys with us, who had the pleasure of meeting the friends of the Boston Orchestra and who had the satisfaction of bearing a superb concert and a fine reading of "Peter and the Wolf," by Mrs. Kennedy.

Alberto Giacometti, Lumley Cazalet Ltd., 24 Davies St., London, W 1, to May 28.

This is an assemblage of 30 lithographs and ten etchings made by Giacomettl between 1931 and 1960. Most are typical of the sculptor's best drawings, and "The Dog" is, to my view, the most exciting of all, showing as it does a corner of his studio with this and other sculptures.

Antonio Sanfillapo. Arte Contemporanea, 525 Via del Corso. Rome, to May 5.

Masses of tiny, crisscrossing hieroglyphics fall together toward the sides or the middle of plain canvases. Attracted to each other as graphite accretions, they are in pleasant summery colors and often sparked by small white interstices. Over the years the little marks have been reduced to short stubby strokes and dots, gathered in swarms like pollen. Or sometimes they look like traces of past civilizations seen from the air: a white arrowlike form c'eaves them or cuts a swath through them. The recent color is mostly leaf green and neat and, hovering as it does over the white grounds, conveys a sense of open, free space.

Chiara Andreis, Il Segno, 4 Via Capo Le Case. Rome, to May

Andreis's whimsleaf drawings of birds and animals are in a minor key and resemble nature book illustrations. Egrets and elephants, squirrels and nwls. frogs, sneils and puppy dogs' tails, all stare at you head-on or the thist'edown fineness of their plumags, membranes and other detail is rendered imaginatively with the pabistaking industrious line of the rapidograph.

Valerio Ciai. Conitello. 259 Via del Corso, Roms, tn May 15. Pale semi-abstractions with sunny accents are diagonally composed, a little like Cajori, when referring to human figures and to machinery. Cityscapes are more easily read but, though atmospheric hazes and pastel wai's are pleasing, they eeem to be of towns by the sea, without a trace of the solidity and the earth ochres of the Roms they intend to portray.

161 Exhibitors

In the Palazzo del Lavoro, the Moda Selezione spreads over 5,000 square meters and groups 164 exhibitors, including men's and women's wear, accessories, leather, knits, shirts and children's wear. It caters basically to a European market and it Is significant that the largest quota of buyers comes from Germany, with Spain right behind.

American burers, who are mainly looking for ideas, don't come in large numbers to Turin. On the other hand, Japan is a growing market.

It would be wrong to come to Mode Selezione looking for revolutionary trends. Here, one can only find a commercial clue to what a rich, wide marker will wear within the next six months. From that point of view, it is interesting to observe that there is a definite swing back to classic clothes with medium-length skirts, caped coats, shirtwaist dresses, pants suits and a spectacular return of the regular suit. # Danger Seen In Euro-Loans man, teld the opening session of the aunual convention of the Bankers' Association for Foreign Trade that bankers had related their standards in order to de-velop Eurodollar business. In some cases loans were close to being "coreless or irre-pensible."

BOCA RATON, Fla., April 25 (AP-DJ),—A Chase Membrian Bank executive warned lody that dangerous practices were developing in the Eurodollar market. John BM. Phre, vice chau-

Competition among U.S. banks for Eurodollar loan business has grown snarply in recent months. Until the easing of U.S. credit conditions last year, such depos-its were proffiably founed to head effices of the benks, which were strapped for domestic funds to handle U.S. loan demand, Now, however, because U.S.

foun demand has been cut sharply and U.S. interest rates have declured, these Eurodollars are flowing back to the banks orciteus branches, where they must be reloaned in order to maining the prollability of the branelı.

London branches are "tremendously expensive" to staff and maintain, one broker here said, The situation apparently is putting intense pressure on the banks to make high-volume loans at law profit margins. He criticized the increasing number of ioans being made white relatively long maturities and without a regular plan for repayment. He also warned again t Eurodollar loans that contoin no protective corenants for the lender, such as requirements that the borrover's working capital be maintained et a specified levei.

Or Sir Frances Bacon, if you prefer. We want to impress on people the fact that pork bellies are bacon -and vice versa.

Pork bellies are one of the most actively traded commodities in the world yet many people don't know what they're used for. Now that you know, maybe you ought to consider trading them yourself.

Give your broker a call. You may be surprised to learn that people very much like yourself have mastered commodity futures trading. Of course it's not for everyone. It's very fast-paced and exciting. Both the rewards and the risks can be substantial.

Life's like that. For an informative booklet on commodity trading, write for "Trading in Tomorrows," at the address below.

BRIDGE.

By Alan Truscott

A player in no-trump who has a weak suit that the opponents · can attack effectively may have to play with considerable subtlety to discourage them from doing so. It may be possible to persuade them to continue on a road that leads them nowhere.

Eddie Kantar of Los Angeles, one of the world's top player-writers, schieved this on the diagramed deal played in the Vanderbilt knock out team championship last month. He reached a routine contract of three no-trump after he had opened with two no-trump and his partner had used Stayman in the hope of uncovering a heart

The auction steered West away from a major-suit lead, for he knew that South held four spades and that the dummy would come down with four hearts. A diamond lead would have been a killer as it turned out, but a cinb seemed less likely to give South a trick

After the club lead, South could count eight sure tricks, and the ninth was available if the hearts divided evenly. There was no hurry to play hearts, however, and the declarer focused his attention on developing a spade trick. The problem was to lessen the chance that the defenders would take the first spade and make the killing shift to dismonds.

With the savoir faire of a great magician creating his favorite illusion, Kantar played low on the opening lead and captured the nine with the king. His next move was to lead the spade queen and wait for West to fall into the

The play to the first trick convinced West that he had struck oil with his club lead.

It seemed to him that his partner had begun with A-J-10-9 and that it was vital to continue the suit at every opportunity.

West accordingly put on the spade king and led the club seven. He was distressed to find that it was the cumning Mr. Kantar who held the remaining honors. The contract was easily made by a further spade lead to establish the ninth trick.

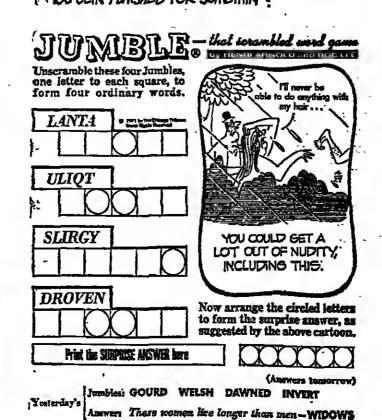

ble. The bidding: West North East 3 A Pass 3 N.T. Pass 2 N.T. Pass Pass Pass and unhappy time, for they deal teristic of Eastern Kentucky with hunger in America—a situa-tion too many people still need to be persuaded exists. They deal with other matters, too: loss of pride and dignity; the blighting of children's lives, the narrowing of horizons, the resentment that builds up in a man's mind under unending economic pressure until it takes heaven knows what form. But these are dividends of the basic need.

The problem of the people studied in these books, who live in the Mississippi Delta and in Appalachia, in the eastern part of Kentucky, is how to get through the month fed and warm. Both books are forthright and uncluttered. They are free of jargon and sociological rhetoric. And they cover roughly the same ground, except that half of Tony Dunbar's volume is devoted to the blacks in the Delta, whereas. Bill Surface restricts himself to Appalachia. Their methods re-semble each other a trifle, too.

Both took down verbatim talk of the people they interviewed. Dunbar, a young and earnest Southerner who has worked on various community programs, quotes from them in formal ovestion and answer paragraphs when they suit his need. Surface, a magazine writer and native Kantuckian, has used the talk to give an almost fictional finish to his chapters as he shares the life of one family for five days in the heart of winter. But there is a very visible difference between the two that is going to provoke passionate finger-pointing disagreement.

Dunbar's stand may be described as conventionally liberal. He sees the blacks in the Delta as: dominated and exploited by the planter groups who run the country and the whites of Appalachia equally exploited by an industry. coal mining, that has effectively destroyed their way of life and frustrated their desire to substitute something better for it. In his view, those who wielded the greatest economic power bave the most to answer for.

Surface measures off a much smaller are and he places the blame for the current misery in Appalachia on the people them-selves. For Coy and June. his representative figures, parents of ten children, are shown to be lazy, feckless, unambitious, illiterate, without much backbone or resolve and willing accessories to their own plight. They may not bave planned their condition, but they have no powerful desire to alter it. And he leaves no doubt that the various government programs designed to help them have been hollow failures. Reagan will love every page of this work.

Take nutrition. Surface has found the common diet to consist of pinto beans, potatoes, corn bread, biscuits, flour gravy, jelly and occasionally milk, Irled pork. pies and soft drinks-a lopsided

BOTH of these books sound and ill-balanced grouping 1 like throwbacks to another such a diet, he says, is charsuch a diet, he says, is charif the income of Coy and he soared, they would not heef, veal, fish or leafy vegetal. The consumption of cols did in the county is 22 percent ab the national average.

There's no backing away to the fact that "The Hollow", one-sided. What about th families in the hollow who want to better themselves? F have they fared? And about the failures of elected ficials and community leaders the plight of these people?

It seems to be true than that the Kentuckian's individu ism and his suspicion of too government and officials h prevented him from getting gether with his own people improve his lot. Thus his cheated by merchants, explosion by doctors and fooled by the cos. Dunbar would likely agi. though he would place the bla-elsewhere. He does think thinare getting better. In the De he sees a new resolve and or sciousness of what can be achi ed. The planter tenant relative ed. The sense of community tr existed in spite of class differences has also gone. But thinks a new community wi blacks dominating fir will established. Surface has throt in the towel. Dunbar is diggiin for another round.

Surveyed to Death

WASHINGTON.—The world will not end with a bang or a whimper. It will probably end with a poll. Americans are being polled to death at the moment and you can't leave your house without someone asking how you feel about something.

The other day I had to fly up to New York. As I adjusted my seat and got ready to spooze, the stewardess handed me a question naire.

"Would you mind filling this out for our airline?" looked at the questions. "Are Buchwald you happy with our service?" "How many drinks did you bny?" "What is your color preference for our baggage racks?" "Why did you choose to fly this airline?"

I dutifully filled out the questionnaire and went to my hotel. After checking into the room, I found a questionnaire on the nightstand.

"The management would be grateful if you fill out the following: Did you find the room made up when you checked in? Were there enough towels in the bathroom? Washcloths? How often do you plan to take a bath during your stay?" Etc.,

I canceled my lunch so I could fill out the questionnaire honestly. After turning it over to the manager, I went out to hall a taxi. A pretty girl ln a miniskirt with a clipboard came up and said, "Would you answer a few questions for a survey our company is doing on New York

"I'm very late." I pleaded. "It will only take a moment. How long have you been waiting for a taxi?" "Just R few moments. There's one." I sald.

"Please sir. I still have some questions to ask you." "Hurry," I pleaded.

York? "For meetings," I said anxious-

"Why did you come to New

"Then not for pleasure?"

ANNOUNCEMENTS

"Well, I'm hoping to get some pleasure in, but I can't until I find out what they tell me at the meetings. There goes another

She stopped me from hailing it and continued, "What irks you the most about New York City?" "Being polled while I'm trying to hail a taxi."

"I have only 20 more questions to ask, sir. When you walk around New York, do you look in shop windows?" etc., etc.

I finally got rid of her, but there were no taxis in sight so I had to walk to my appointment. Ten blocks later I was stopped by a man with a briefcasewho said, "I beg your pardon, but could you tell me if you think Mayor Lindsay is doing better, doing worse, or holding his own in New York City?" "I don't know. I'm a stranger bere. I live in Washington." "Washington?" He took another poll out of his briefcase. "Do you think President Nixon is doing better, doing worse, or holding his own?"

"What gives?" I asked. "First you ask me about Lindsay, then Nixon."

"Don't tell anyone," he said. "But I'm moonlighting and working for two political polisters at the same time."

I tried to get around him but he blocked my path. "Look, if you don't want to talk about politics, I'm also doing a survey for a market research company on chocolate-flavored cigars."

I started to run down the street and he followed me so I sought sanctuary in a church on Fifth Avenue.

The service had just finished and a minister handed me a mimeographed sheet of paper which said "In order to make our afternoon services more relevant, would you kindly tell us whether you were: (A) emotion-ally involved, (B) spiritually fulfilled, (C) satisfied with the musical numbers selected by our organist, (D) did you have a good view of the altar?"

I filled it out and left, The man with the briefcase was standing in front of the church, "How about giving me your thoughts on hot pants?"

"We believe we were the chosen ones. that this time the order of Melchisedek would finally be achieved ... that we, the true believers, would inherit and rule the earth for all eternity."

-William J. Corecco.

The Last of the Esoteric Fraternity

By Charles Hillinger

A PPLEGATE, Calif.—William J. Corecco, 89, is president of one of the most exclusive religious cults in the world. Only he and his 91-year-old brother, Steven, are members.

"We knew the membership would be limited but never expected it to be as small as this," said the president. The prime requisite for joining the century-old Esoteric Fraternity is "absolute abstinence from sexual activity." In its nearly 100 years of existence. Mr. Corecco said, the fraternity has had st most no more than two dozen members. Very have been willing to make the sacrifice." Last month Mr. Corecco and his brother buried the last surviving female member, Luvenia Sublette, 83.

"To join," the octogenarian explained during an interview, "it is necessary not only to live a life of a celibate, but also to give all of your money and worldly possessions to the fraternity. My brother and I are terribly disappointed there are not more members."

Fraternity headquarters is a four-story, 19th-century house at the end of a dirt road which winds up a 360-acre, heavily wooded hill owned by the cult. As he talked, Mr. Corecco, fourth president and 70 years an Esoteric, swayed back and forth in a creaky old rocking chair beside a pot-bellied stove that warmed the musty library. The Esoterics believed that they were to be the order of Melchisedek prophesied in Revelations in the Bible. Bible says when 144,000 persons establish the order of Melchisedek, the kingdom of God will be established on earth,

That was our hope . . . " Mr. Corecco said. The founding president and author of several books describing the sect's peculiar philosophy was Hiram Erastus Butler who died in 1916 and is buried outside the library

"Hiram Butler was a Pennsylvanian," said Mr. Corecco, "a simple, self-educated man who worked in a sawmill. "He lost several fingers in a mill accident and became a hermit. For 14 years he lived in seclusion, never speaking to another person. It was during this period of his life he received several revelations from God." Mr. Butler revealed his revelations in a series of lectures Eoston. In 1889 the bearded mystic and a dozen followersall single men and single women-pooled their resources and moved to the West Coast.

Here they settled on the lonely hill overlooking the Amerlcan River. They raised crops. They tended a small herd of stock. They meditated. And they printed philosophical and religious books in their own publishing house at the bottom

Although the membership is down to two very old men, mail continues to pour into Applegate (population 300) addressed to the Esoteric Fraternity. And William Corecco keeps busy filling orders for the 19 books and pamphlets published by the cult throughout its long history. "Esoteric publications are sold in book stores across the nation, in England, France, Italy and Germany. We have German and Italian-language. editions," he said.

Throughout all 19 publications there is one central theme to believe in and accept God, one must live the life of a celibate. Mr. Corecco said that this would not result in no people being left on earth. "Of course there would be no more children. But there would be no more sickness. No more disease. No more death if man gave np sexual activity. "When man gives up the sex act the kingdom of God will be established on earth. When that happens we all become sons An Esoteric Fraternity existed among the Jews years before the birth of Christ, Mr. Corecco claimed. "But it was lost. It was restored by Christ, but lost again by the Christians, "That is precisely what we have been attempting in our group. We believe we were the chosen ones, that this time the order of Melchisedek would finally be achieved . . . that we, the true believers, would inherit and rule the earth for all eternity. "Esoteric teachings," he went on, "are interpretations of the true meaning of the Bible. The Bible gives us to understand unless a man retains his seed-his substance of procreation-and does not east it forth as do other animals of the earth, he cannot achieve the more refined life, the holy spirit. "Christ's purpose concerning man is not that he should spend his existence in endlessly reproducing his kind."

Ltd., a London peejay manufacturer which recently won an award from Queen Elizabeth II for boosting British exports. "Pyjamas dropped from favor several years ago when television and movies started showing people romping about in their bedrooms in the nude," said Bonsoir's managing director Derek Rose. "People thought, Oh, if they do it, it must be the latest thing." However, the fad has been on the wane for the past three years. "Even in Japan" our sales are rising rapidly," said Rose, "In their move to Westernization, the Japanese have dropped their 'ukatas'-their traditional night garment—and donned the Western equivalent.".
